EVERYTHING IN GOOD ORDER

ROOM SERVICE BY RADIUS DESIGN

Piles of magazines in every corner? Bottles with no permanent home? Relax! Help is on its way. The designers at RADIUS DESIGN have already proven many times that they know all about the "things of life" and know of solutions which bring a sense of order to some of the chaos found in the home. Although first aid comes only in the form of small things, not only are they witty and sophisticated, they also ensure surprisingly clear proportions in the confusion of the kitchen, bathroom and children's room.

Even in a stylish living room, NEWS makes a fantastic figure. The magazine holder, made of powder-coated steel, is so slim and slender that it can be positioned anywhere. It comes in five great colors. A stand like this really makes tidying up fun. (Design: Ralph Kraeuter)

In its sophistication, COLLATOR is even more amazing. This storage unit, which plays a supporting role, for newspapers, magazines and books surprises us with its accordion effect. The aesthetic aluminum storage miracle is available in four versions. The maxi version can be stretched to a length of up to 300 cm, but can also fold up and become very small when it is no longer needed, when all the books have been read and put in the recycling bin.

It is always a good idea to have a good wine on standby, for someone might pop by when you don't expect it. But then it is really annoying when you have to dig out the bottles from their hiding place somewhere or other or even fetch them from the cellar. It is far more chic to show what you have. And this is where the cheeky stainless steel WEINRACK, with its clear statement, comes into its own. It holds up to six wine bottles on each side in a highly decorative arrangement. It is hard to believe that a space of just 60 cm is large enough for the perfect wall-mounted wine storage unit. Incidentally, it can also hold Champagne bottles. For very special occasions...
